CORBET. The name denotes in Norman-French a fawn, whether in allusion to the famous Danish Standard of which their ancestors might have been the bearers from Scandinavia under Rollo, the Arlequin (a Danish Standard), the movements of which pointed to that people the event of their expedition, or whether derived from a less noble source. Anna, a fawn, p.p.t. The estate of Ynysmaengwyn was sold to the late John Corbet, of Lamprey, M.P. for Denbigh, 1874, &c., who married Anna Eliza, d. of John O'Meara, of co. Tipperary, and had with other issue, Roger John, born 1883, the present owner (1914). This family is in no way connected with the former Corbets, though they happen by chance to have almost the same name.
