JEFFREY R. ELLIOTT, LUTHIER

By appointment.

Fifteen years ago, when he was only 22, Jeffrey R. Elliott began making guitars. Since then, Jeffrey's instruments have attracted the praise of the masters—among them Julian Bream, Michael Lorimer and Christopher Parkening—and earned him an enviable reputation in this age-old craft. Like all true masters, he served an apprenticeship (under Richard Schneider, the noted Gibson designer) and in 1978-79 had an instrument on display in the Smithsonian Institution's Renwick Gallery. Each of his guitars is crafted by hand, a labor of love requiring 200 painstaking hours and time-honored methods long since abandoned by high-volume manufacturers. Professionals, including Leo Kottke, who owns three, and Ralph Towner, routinely commission instruments, both classical and steel string. They, like other customers, realize that perfection cannot be rushed: the waiting list for a Jeffrey Elliott Guitar now is two years long.

14. Mary Elizabeth b.1855 Madison Co, Ark. d.1875
(you'll notice there were quite a few of the same name that married into this Ogden family and sisters marrying brother-in-laws.)

A letter received from Sarepta, La., tells me that Henry Chambliss b.1791 Stern, Greenville Co., N.Car. died on or before 1875 in Red Oak, Tx., his wife, Sarah Kuckaby was still alive in 1880 she was on that Census as the head of a household, her father was William Kuckaby

A clipping from the Courier Journal of Louisville, Ky., lists a Major Chambliss M. Chesnutt of the U.S. Air Force as being shot down and missing over Viet Nam 30 Sept. 1965, who was his father?

the following families I can't find anyone who knew of them, or can I find places for them in the history;
